

TERROR IN THE STACKS

Who read that book... last?

When terrorists come to a small town library, rookie FBI agent Billy O'Brian finds himself assigned to the reference room on a job that could make his career. But easy glory turns to deadly danger as Billy pursues an unknown enemy in the labyrinth of knowledge.

Is it Mr. Cantor, with his curious interest in chemistry? The young student Akheem, who reads philosophy after school? Or perhaps the attractive widow Lisa Garrett, whose eyes tempt Billy to desire and whose reading habits fit the perfect profile of an industrial saboteur?

- "The card catalog has never been so scary." - Union Stars Video Review
- "Billy is the hero we'd all like to be." - Stanley Viner, Homeland Gazette
- "...every patron's worst nightmare." - True Blue Policy Journal